

DUKE UNIVERSITY PRESS

BOOKS & JOURNALS

FALL/WINTER 1988/89

New Titles

General Interest

- Ezra Pound and Margaret Cravens, Pound and Spoo, editors 1
Hidden Illness in the White House, Crispell and Gomez 2
Nancy Hanks: An Intimate Portrait, Stroight 3
A Russian Civil War Diary: Alexis Babine in Sorotov, Raleigh, editor 4
Democracy Under Fire: Memoirs of a European Socialist, Sturmthal 5
Gardening for Love: The Market Bulletins, Lawrence 6
The Journey Is Everything: A Journal of the Seventies, Bevington 7
Living with the Coast of Maine, Kelley and Kelley 7

Political Science

- Politics by Humans: Research on American Leadership, Barber 8
Mr. Justice Black and His Critics, Yarbrough 9
The Free Economy and the Strong State, Gamble 9
Coalition Strategies of Marxist Parties, Gilberg, editor 10
Technology and Politics, Kraft and Vig, editors 10
Political Business Cycles: The Political Economy of Money, Inflation, and Unemployment, Willett, editor 11
Gubernatorial Transitions: The 1983 and 1984 Elections, Beyle, editor 12
Front of the Polls, 1981 and 1986, Penniman, editor 12
Catastrophic Coastal Storms: Godschalk, Brower, and Beutley 13

Literature

- Essentials of the Theory of Fiction, Hoffman and Murphy, editors 14
Traherne in Dialogue: Heidegger, Lacan, and Derrida, DeNeef 15
Fascination: Faulkner's Fiction, Gresset 15
Shifting Ground: Exile Literature from the Spanish Civil War, Ugarte 16
Chinese Narrative Poetry: The Tradition in Shih from the Late Han through T'ang Dynasties, Levy 16
On Emerson: The Best from American Literature, Cady and Budd, editors 16
On Melville: The Best from American Literature, Budd and Cady, editors 17

Latin American Studies

- The Money Doctor in the Andes: The Kemmerer Missions, Drake 18
Street Children of Cali, Aptekar 18
Domination and Cultural Resistance. Authority and Power Among the Andean People, Rosnoko 19

Studies in Culture and Society

- Political Reasoning and Cognition: A Piagetian View, Rosenberg,
Ward, and Chilton 20
Evolutionary Systems and Society: A General Theory, Csányi 21
Free Trade and Moral Philosophy: Rethinking the Sources of Adam
Smith's Wealth of Nations, Teichgraber 21

Soviet and Eastern European Studies

- Economic Adjustment and Reform in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, Brada, Hewett, and Wolf, editors 22
Religion and Nationalism in Soviet and East European Politics,
Ramet, editor 22

Prizewinners and Best-Sellers

Books in Series

- Living with the Shore 24 At the Polls 24 Duke Press Policy Studies 25

- Journals 26 Author and Editor Index 32 Sales Information 32

Ezra Pound and Margaret Cravens

A Tragic Friendship, 1910-1912

Omar Pound and Robert Spoo, editors

Ezra Pound met Margaret Cravens in Paris in 1910 during one of his most creative and formative periods. Margaret Cravens, of Madison, Indiana, had come to Paris several years earlier to study piano and was drawn to the young Pound out of a shared interest in poetry and the arts. Their friendship began when she offered Pound generous financial support, which continued, unknown to anyone else, until June 1912, when she committed suicide in Paris, one year after her father's suicide in Indiana.

Pound was deeply affected by her death, as was the American poet H.D., who had also recently come to know her. Pound's letters to Cravens, extensively annotated, are published here for the first time; her suicide note to him is also included. Ezra Pound and Margaret Cravens contains photographs and previously unpublished material by Pound and H.D., as well as an excerpt from H.D.'s autobiographical novel "Asphodel," in which Cravens figures prominently. This portrait of a friendship provides insight into the literary achievements of Pound and H.D. and tells the unknown story of Margaret Cravens's tragic life.

Omar Pound is Lecturer in the Department of English, Princeton University; Robert Spoo is Assistant Professor of English, the University of Tulsa.

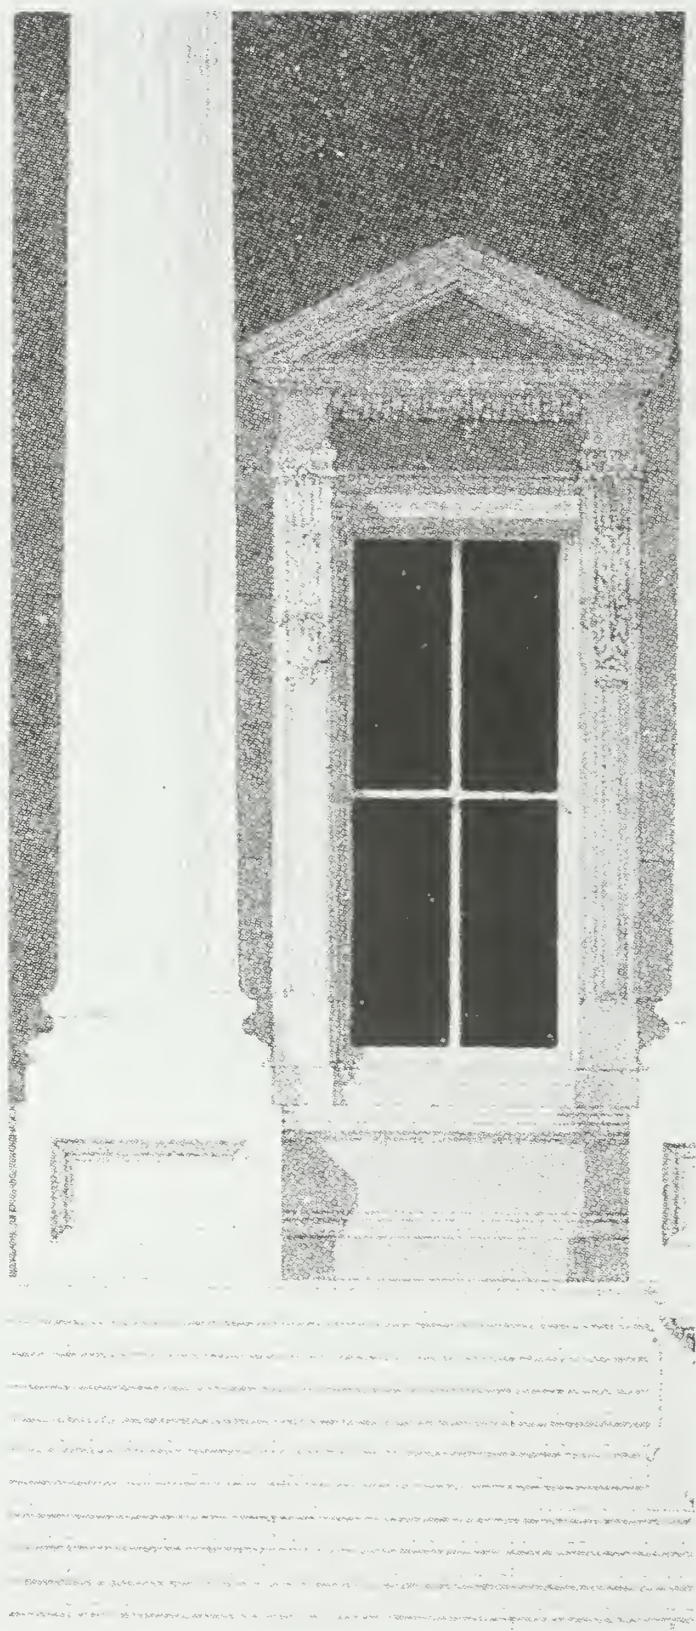

168 pages, photographs, index.
LC 88-7156.
ISBN 0-8223-0862-2, $25.95
November

Also of interest

Ezra Pound and the Erotic Medium

Kevin Oderman

1986. xv, 160 pages. LC 86-11471.
ISBN 0-8223-0672-7, $22.50

Hidden Illness in the White House

Kenneth R. Crispell, M.D., and Carlos F. Gomez

"The next President of the United States and the President's physician should be the first ones to read Hidden Illness in the White House. The authors tell a fascinating story, alerting us to the danger to our country if we do not hereafter insist on obtaining accurate information about the health of candidates for the presidency before we vote."—Herbert Brownell, former Attorney General of the United States

The serious illnesses of three presidents—Wilson, Roosevelt, and Kennedy—as well as the injury received by Reagan in the assassination attempt reveal our woefully inadequate system for handling presidential incapacity. The authors believe that this flawed system poses a major threat to the nation, and they provide important and sobering reports on how the government functioned (or failed to function) during times of presidential impairment. The public was kept in the dark regarding the gravity of the president's condition, unaware that he was making critical decisions that could alter the course of history.

Hidden Illness in the White House contains startling new information on the severity of Roosevelt's illness during the crucial Yalta negotiations and the little-known fact that Kennedy suffered from a life-threatening illness (Addison's disease) long before he was elected to the presidency. In each case the authors demonstrate that a largely successful effort was made to conceal the president's true medical condition from the public. They also document major shortcomings in the use of the Twenty-fifth Amendment on presidential succession in times of crisis. In the case of the death of a president the line of succession is clearly defined, but in the case of a physically or mentally impaired president there was no mechanism for his removal until passage of the Twenty-fifth Amendment in 1967. Crispell and Gomez suggest how we can resolve the difficulties in the present cumbersome procedure for dealing with an impaired president.

Kenneth Crispell, M.D., is University Professor of Medicine and Law emeritus at the University of Virginia; Carlos Gomez is a Pew Fellow in Medicine and Public Policy at the University of Chicago.

248 pages, index. LC 88-7158.
ISBN 0-8223-0839-8, $27.50
January

Nancy Hanks

An Intimate Portrait

Michael Straight

Nancy Hanks was the second chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts, serving from October 1969 until October 1977. She died on January 7, 1983; later that year, at the request of Congress, President Reagan designated the complex of buildings at Pennsylvania Avenue and 11th Street in Washington, D.C., as the Nancy Hanks Center.

This biography captures the spirit and the flavor of Miss Hanks's life, above all during the eight years in which she led the Endowment. Tracing her childhood in Florida and North Carolina to her struggle for women's rights while a student at Duke University, Straight describes her conscious effort to find a path with more scope than the usual marriage-and-a-family expected of southern women. Nancy Hanks went to Washington and found a job with the Office of War Mobilization. She later worked with Nelson Rockefeller, who became governor of New York, a Republican party luminary, and vice president under Gerald Ford, in addition to being heir to one of America's greatest fortunes. Her relationship with Rockefeller was crucial to her personal life, and his conception of government and its role had a great influence on her career.

Straight examines Hanks's career at the NEA in the light of the debates over the role of the government in fostering American artistic expression, a question with roots running back through the New Deal to Thomas Jefferson. Hanks took a strong and activist role in the formulation and administration of U.S. arts policy, and her accomplishments have had a lasting impact. Straight, who worked closely with Hanks and admired her despite frequent policy disagreements, deals honestly with both the success and failure of her efforts. His biography imports a sense of why this complex and gifted woman inspired such loyalty from her many friends.

Michael Straight was deputy chairman, National Endowment for the Arts, 1969–78. He is in a unique position to treat both the public and personal dimensions of Nancy Hanks's career. He has served as an editor of The New Republic and is the author of several other books, including Make This the Last War (1943), Trial by Television (1953, on the Army-McCarthy hearings), Twigs for an Eagle's

Nest: Government and the Arts, 1965–1978 (1979), and the autobiographical After Long Silence (1983).

Approx. 300 pages, photographs, index.

ISBN 0-8223-0869-X, $22.50

November

A Russian Civil War Diary

Alexis Babine in Saratov,
1917–1922

Donald J. Raleigh, editor

In the fall of 1917, Alexis V. Bobine, a Russian-born American educated at Cornell University, accepted an appointment as instructor in English at the newly opened university in the Russian provincial capital of Saratov. That October, the Russian Revolution broke out, followed by a cataclysmic civil war. Bobine remained in Saratov as a teacher throughout most of the war; this is his diary from that period, retrieved from the obscurity of the Library of Congress archives.

The editor of this fascinating, personal story of the Russian Civil War undertook research visits to Saratov and added new material that enables the reader to understand the context of events described and better interpret their significance. The rich detail on life in Saratov during the Civil War is doubly interesting because this is the only known non-Bolshevik account of events in a provincial town during that time. Bobine's diary offers a rare, poignant, and viscerally real view of war and revolution in a provincial Russian town on the Volga River and brings to life the terrible daily struggle for survival. The work provides invaluable insights into the course of the Civil War and the day-to-day workings of the revolutionary process at the grass-roots level. From the time of Bobine's arrival in Saratov until his escape with the help of the American Relief Administration (which opened an office in Saratov to distribute food to the victims of famine), the diary captures the distinct texture of civil war during five years of tumultuous disorder, deprivation, and personal danger.

Donald Raleigh, Professor of History at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, edited and annotated the diary and provides a biographical sketch of Bobine.

264 pages, maps, illustrations, index.

LC 88-3967.

ISBN 0-8223-0835-5, $29.95

October

Democracy Under Fire

Memoirs of a European Socialist

Adolf Sturmthal

Edited by Suzanne Sturmthal Russin

"This is one of the most appealing books of memoirs anyone has written about European Social Democracy. Adolf Sturmthal (1903–1986) was a distinguished Austrian Socialist and scholar of international labor. He has written a sparkling account of his encounters between 1917 and the 1960s with luminaries from nearly every country of Europe.

"The book is bursting with wisdom about what went wrong in Europe between the wars, and how labor movements since then have lost touch with their past."—William M. Johnston, University of Massachusetts

"A fascinating tale . . . not only a personal memoir but also a scholarly account of an especially tragic period in the political history of the 20th century."—John P. Windmuller, Cornell

On October 21, 1916, Austrian socialist leader Friedrich (Fritz) Adler assassinated Austro-Hungarian Prime Minister Count Sturgkh, hated leader of the repressive and bellicose government. The event marked a turning point in the lives of thousands of Austrian youths and others who were inspired by what they saw as the heroism and self-sacrifice of Adler. Among these was Adolf Sturmthal, a poor student whom Adler had taken on as an assistant, messenger, and confidant.

In these memoirs we follow Sturmthal from the turbulent days of World War I to the post-war idealism and dreams of a new society that turned sour in the disillusion and depression of the later 1920s and 1930s, the nightmarish rise of fascism and Stalinism, and eventual emigration to a haven in the United States. Sturmthal then began a distinguished career as a scholar of labor relations and economic development, teaching at Columbia, Yale, Chicago, and Cornell. At the time of his death in 1986 he was Emeritus Professor of Labor and Industrial Relations at the University of Illinois.

Approx. 300 pages, index.
ISBN 0-8223-0840-1, $29.95
January

Now in paperback

Gardening for Love

The Market Bulletins

Elizabeth Lawrence

Edited with an introduction by

Allan Lacy

From the reviews:

New York Times Book Review:

"An enchanting work, unlike any other gardening book in existence." —Stanley Kunitz

Washington Post Book World:

"Lawrence reveals a good bit that is fresh and delicate in American life—a kind of love-tangle between her and those who supplied her from farms hundreds of miles away." —Henry Mitchell

Boston Globe:

"Lawrence's book is a celebration of life in all its diversity, and life, she makes us feel, is the main event." —Richard Dyer

Newsday:

"There's a sense of comfort in this book, in the eternity of tending plants that stretches through the centuries." —Anne Raver

Listed as one of the 1987 Notable Books of the Year for both the Philadelphia Inquirer and The New York Times

First published 1987. ix, 238 pages, photographs, sources of plants, list of common plant names, bibliography, index. LC 86-32896.

ISBN 0-8223-0715-4, cloth, $19.95

ISBN 0-8223-0887-8, paper, $9.95

September

Now available in paperback

The Journey Is Everything

A Journal of the Seventies

Helen Bevington

"A wise book . . . there is plenty here for nearly everyone." — The Traveler's Book Society Review

"Teacher/essayist/lecturer Bevington generously threads this journal of the 'out-of-whack' decade with energetic anecdotes, amusing mini-bios, and snatches of casual verse. . . .

"Bevington records visits to various Edens like the South Seas, wide-eyed excursions in Russia, trips to the Dalmatian coast, to the Rhine with grandchildren, to Australia, New Zealand, New Mexico. Along the way Bevington chats about places and people, long-ago and recent confrontations: a sour Moscow waitress, an amorous Yugoslav, a barriers-down conga line in Fiji, a hilariously inept tribal dance by Maoris in New Zealand.

"Those addicted to stimulating miscellany will find it difficult to stop gobbling up the tasty segments here." — Kirkus Reviews

"Bevington's journal is at once a travelogue, a literary-cultural smorgasbord and a kaleidoscope of personal reflections. Bevington's attitude toward a chaotic world is curious, tolerant, bemused, humorous, ever responsive.

"Whether she writes about sparrows in churches or cannibalism, Bevington strikes the reader's mind with new ideas and impressions." — Publisher's Weekly

First published 1983. vii, 208 pages. LC 83-5582.

ISBN 0-8223-0553-4, cloth, $20.00

ISBN 0-8223-0847-9, paper, $10.95

June

Living with the Coast of Maine

Joseph T. Kelley and Alice R. Kelley
Sponsored by the Notional Audubon Society™

Maine is widely known for its rockbound coast and its relatively pristine shoreline. There is more to northern New England's coast than rocky cliffs, however, and this book describes the origin of the more common "soft coast" of eroding bluffs, sand beaches, and salt marshes. It begins at the time of the last Ice Age and follows shoreline evolution through an initial drowning by the sea and periods of uplift and emergence. The book's central theme concerns the formation of the present shoreline during the current and ongoing sea-level rise and how coastal residents can best cope with the changes to come.

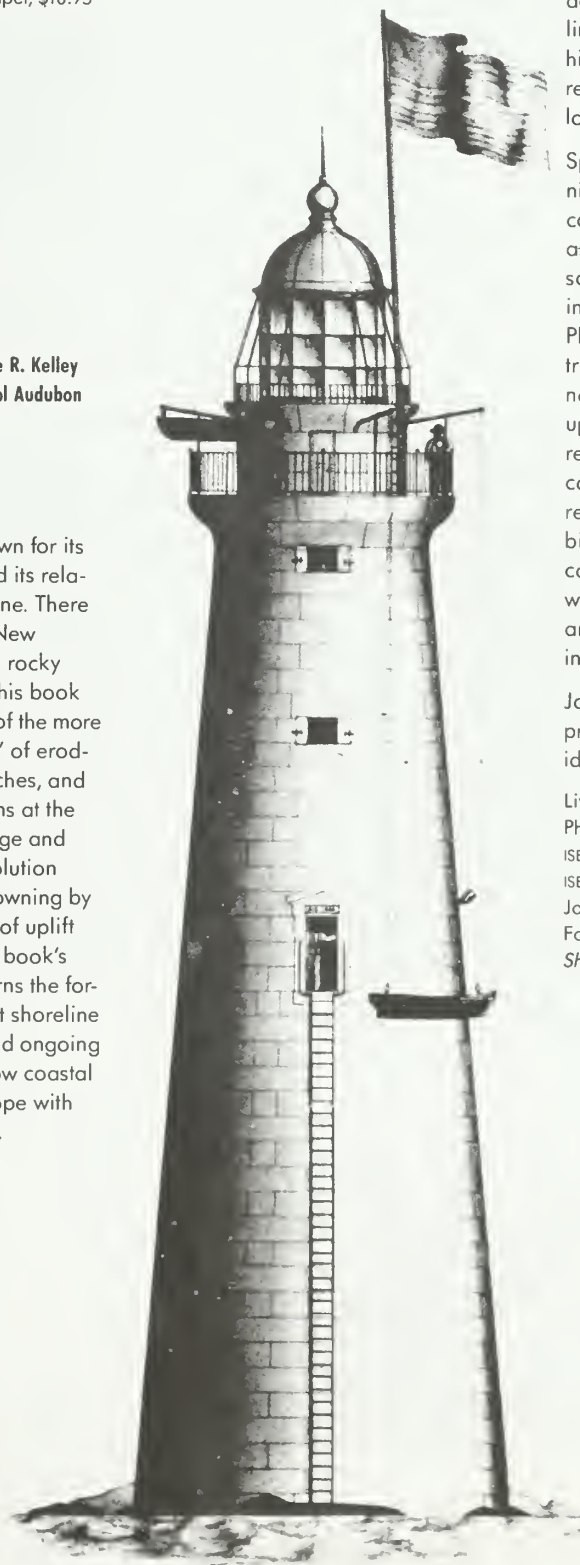

Although it is not widely known, Maine is experiencing a rapid, uneven drowning of its shore at the same time that coastal development and construction are at an all-time high. The authors provide a general description of how the shoreline is changing; a series of highly detailed maps show the relative safety of particular locations on the coast.

Specific guidelines for recognizing various safe and unsafe coastal settings are presented, as are recommendations for sound construction techniques in hazardous coastal areas. Photographs and drawings illustrate the danger of living too near the shoreline, and an up-to-date review of Maine's regulations governing coastal construction is plainly and readably described. Finally, a bibliography of important coastal literature is provided with a guide to federal, state, and local sources of information.

Joseph and Alice Kelley are professional geologists and residents of the state of Maine.

Living with the Shore series
Photographs, maps, figures, index.
ISBN 0-8223-0864-9, cloth, $32.50
ISBN 0-8223-0885-1, paper, $10.95
January

For other titles in the Living with the Shore series, see page 24.

Politics by Humans

Research on American Leadership

James David Barber

—
"This collection contains the finest studies of political leaders by a single individual that now exists."—Aaron Wildavsky, University of California, Berkeley

David Barber's research on leadership, particularly on the phenomenon of the American presidency, has become legendary for both its insight and wit. Here are some of the most original and seminal products of his scholarship.

Part One. Leader-in-chief. The office; Life history (Andrew Johnson); Hard cases (Coolidge and Hoover); Character and style (Taft, Truman, Eisenhower, Lyndon Johnson, Nixon); Strategy for research; Roots of genius (Franklin Roosevelt)

Part Two. Perception shapes power. Eye of the beholder (the Connecticut General Assembly illustrates Sam Rayburn's advice "to get along, go along"); Motivated sociology (town government leaders differ markedly in perceptions of power, and self-perceptions help explain the variation); Sharing constructs (popular reaction to the Kennedy assassination); Gethering influence (case study of legislative leadership); Culture and system

Part Three. Mediated leadership. Campaign literature ("the reporter sets out not to find facts, but to find a story"); Fighting story (Theodore Roosevelt); Civic education (TV news and its problems in presenting political affairs); Drift to fiction (the 1980 election and the imaginary politics of the media—"calls into question whether the nation was losing its capacity to deliberate effectively in choosing a president"); Ways out (our appetite for political drama and the journalistic imagination); Advice to the Sucker Generation (how did Reagan get to be president, and what does it mean?); Conclusion. Reflections on the problems of politics and the science of solving them

David Barber is James B. Duke Professor of Political Science and Policy Studies and Co-director of the Center for the Study of Communications, Duke University. Among his books are The Presidential Character: Predicting Performance in the White House and The Pulse of Politics: The Rhythm of Presidential Elections in the Twentieth Century.

512 pages. LC 87-36593.

ISBN 0-8223-0837-1, cloth, $59.50

ISBN 0-8223-0848-7, paper, $19.95

September

Mr. Justice Black and His Critics

Tinsley E. Yarbrough

Many jurists give lip service to the idea that judicial interpretation of constitutional provisions should be based on the intent of the framers. Few, if any, have been as faithful to that conception as Hugo Black. As U.S. senator from Alabama, Black was a vigorous critic of the Supreme Court's use of the Constitution as a weapon against the Roosevelt New Deal. Once on the court he played a leading part in overturning those decisions and in attempting to establish for freedom of speech and other guarantees the interpretation he (and others) believed was warranted by the language and intent of the framers.

Late in his career, however, Black's commitment to literalism and intent led him to assume apparently conservative positions in civil liberties cases. In an era characterized by growing acceptance of the belief that judges should adapt the Constitution to changing social and ethical perceptions, many came to regard Black's position as unrealistic and irrelevant.

Yarbrough analyzes Black's judicial and constitutional philosophy, as well as his approach to specific cases, through the eyes of Black's critics (such as Justices Frankfurter and Harlan) and through an assessment of scholarly opinion of his jurisprudence. The result is a stimulating and provocative addition to the study of Justice Black and the Supreme Court.

Tinsley Yarbrough is Professor of Political Science, East Carolina University, Greenville, North Carolina. He is the author of A Passion for Justice: J. Waties Waring and Civil Rights and Judge Frank Johnson and Human Rights in Alabama. The latter work was awarded the American Bar Association Silver Gavel award in 1982.

Approx. 340 pages. Index.
ISBN 0-8223-0866-5, $45.00

The Free Economy and the Strong State

Andrew Gamble

"Many books on Thatcher and Thatcherism have been published. This is one of the best. It is well-informed, intelligent, and unusually comprehensive. Everyone interested in the transformation that Margaret Thatcher is seeking to bring about in Britain's political economy should read it."—Anthony King, University of Essex

The Free Economy and the Strong State is an analysis of the new conservative politics that have emerged in the West in the 1970s in response to world recession and a growing realization of the limits and failures of preceding liberal, social democratic governments. Gamble points to the exhaustion of "Fordism" (the theory, traced to Henry Ford, that well-paid industrial workers fuel continuous capitalist growth) and the ebbing of American hegemony as twin causes of the rise of the new conservatism, epitomized for him in the Thatcher regime in Great Britain.

Analyzing the Thatcher goals of a "free economy and a strong state," Gamble traces their intellectual and political background in the New Right, reviews the policies and achievements of the Thatcher administration, and sets forth the weaknesses of what he terms "authoritarian populism" from the standpoints of class politics, feminism, and state policy.

Andrew Gamble is Professor of Politics, University of Sheffield, and the author of The Conservative Nation, Britain in Decline, and Introduction to Modern Social and Political Thought.

288 pages, index.
ISBN 0-8223-0865-7, cloth,
$40.00 (tent.)
ISBN 0-8223-0890-8, paper,
$14.95 (tent.)
September
USA only

Also of interest

The Resurgence of Conservatism in Anglo-American Democracies

Barry Cooper, Allan Kornberg, and William Mishler, editors

1988. vii, 470 pages. LC 87-22270.
ISBN 0-8223-0709-x, cloth, $50.00
ISBN 0-8223-0793-6, paper, $17.95

Coalition Strategies of Marxist Parties

Trond Gilberg, editor

The choosing of friends and identification of enemies, and the resulting quest for alliance with the first and defeat of the latter, are basic to politics.

Coalition Strategies of Marxist Parties investigates the criteria used by communist and Marxist political groups in choosing political friends and enemies and the methods employed in relating to other parties and political groups in Western and Eastern Europe, Latin America, Africa, and Asia. These policies are then examined in the light of orthodox Marxism-Leninism.

Communist and Marxist political groups have exhibited a great deal of flexibility in pursuit of political allies and in struggles with enemies of various stripes. At present, communists and sympathetic leftists are major participants in political processes throughout the world. Like all parties, communist groups have the goal of winning elections and assuming power, but their tactics vary considerably from one campaign to the next and from one political arena to another. For a group espousing an established doctrine, such adaptability constitutes both a strength and a weakness, as the contributors demonstrate.

Contributors

David E. Albright, Air War College; Frank Cibulko, National University of Singapore; William J. Duiker, Pennsylvania State; Charles Gotti, Union College and Columbia; Stanley A. Kochonek, Pennsylvania State; John D. Mortz, Pennsylvania State; Jiri Volento, University of Miami

Trond Gilberg is Professor and Head, Department of Political Science, and Associate Director, Soviet and East European Center, Pennsylvania State University.

Duke Press Policy Studies
376 pages, notes, index. LC 88-9579.
ISBN 0-8223-0849-5, $52.50
January

Technology and Politics

Michael E. Kraft and Norman J. Vig, editors

Technology now pervades our daily lives, and its relationship to politics raises profound philosophical and practical questions. Since human considerations influence the choice of specific areas of technological research, affecting who benefits from development and which risks are acceptable, all these issues come together in the political process. This book examines the ramifications of the crucial nexus of technology and politics.

Contents

Understanding technology: Philosophy and politics. Technology, philosophy, and the state, Norman Vig (Corleton); Do artifacts have politics? Longdon Winner (RPI); Technology and democracy, Albert Borgmann (Montana)

Governing technology: Institutions and processes. Presidential management of technology, W. Henry Lambright and Dianne Rohm (Maxwell School, Syracuse); Technology and governance: The Office of Technology Assessment, John H. Gibbons (Director, OTA) and Holly L. Gwin (OTA); Economics, politics, and government research and development, Roger Noll (Stanford) and Linda Cohen (California, Irvine); Controversial technologies in the mass media, Allan Mazur (Maxwell School, Syracuse)

Regulating technology: Risk assessment and management. Controlling technology: Risks, costs, and benefits, Horvey Brooks (Kennedy School, Harvard); Assessing technological risks in federal regulatory agencies, Michael Kraft (Wisconsin, Green Bay); Sophisticated trial and error in decision making about risk, Edward J. Woodhouse (RPI)

Evaluating technology: Cases and controversies. Ethics and policy: Issues in biomedical technology, Robert H. Blank (Northern Illinois); Evaluating technology through public participation: The nuclear waste disposal controversy, Michael Kraft; Scientific advisory procedures: The SDI experiments at Dartmouth, Roger D. Masters and Arthur R. Kontrowitz (Dartmouth)

Michael Kraft is Herbert Johnson Professor of Environmental Studies and Political Science, University of Wisconsin, Green Bay; Norman Vig is Professor of Political Science and Director of the Science, Technology, and Public Policy Program at Corleton College.

400 pages, index. LC 88-3841.
ISBN 0-8223-0838-x, cloth, $59.75
ISBN 0-8223-0846-0, paper, $17.95
September

Political Business Cycles

The Political Economy of Money, Inflation, and Unemployment

Thomas D. Willett, editor

Foreword by Axel Leijonhuvud, University of California, Los Angeles

A Pacific Research Institute for Public Policy Book

The "political business cycle," according to Yale economist William Nordhaus, creates a situation in which political and bureaucratic incentives create artificial economic booms just before elections, with consequent and deleterious side effects after the ballots are counted. This work examines the issue of whether federal governmental structure inevitably leaves the U.S. economy exposed to unhealthy political influences.

Contents

Part 1. The political and economic causes of the great stagflation. Exploring the great stagflation: Toward a political economy framework, Thomas Willett and King Bonoion; Inflation and politics: Six theories in search of reality, William Mitchell; Models of the political process and their implications for stagflation: A public choice perspective, Thomas Willett and King Bonoion; An overview of political business cycles, King Bonoion; Agency theory and Borro-Gordon bios, Keith Acheson; The Keynesian legacy: Does discretionary demand management help? Thomas Moyer; Wage and price rigidities, supply restrictions, and the problem of stagflation, Gottfried Hoberler; The inflation tax, J. Harold McClure, Jr., and Thomas Willett; The decline of gold as a source of money discipline, John Briggs, Dano Christenson, Pamela Martin, and Thomas Willett; Inflation hypotheses and monetary accommodation: Postwar evidence from the industrial countries, Thomas Willett, King Bonoion, Mohond Merzkoni, Leroy O. Laney, and Arthur D. Worga

Part 2. The political business cycle. Politico-economic models of macroeconomic policy: A review of the empirical evidence, Friedrich Schneider and Bruno Frey; Does the political business cycle dominate U.S. inflation and unemployment? Some new evidence, Stephen E. Hoynes and Joe Stone; Expectations, capital structures, and the political business cycle, Peter Lewin

Part 3. The political economy of monetary policy. Problems inherent in political money supply regimes: Some historical and theoretical lessons, Lawrence H. White; Three monetary and fiscal policy myths, Thomas Hovrilesky; Monetary policy: The rhetoric vs. the record, Raymond Lombro; Politics and monetary policy, Nothaniel Beck

Part 4. Proposals for reform. Evaluating proposals for fundamental monetary reform, Thomas Moyer and Thomas D. Willett; Fiat money and the Constitution: A historical review, Gregory B. Christensen; Monetary confidence, privately produced monies, and domestic and international monetary reform, Michael Melvin; Fedbashing and the role of monetary arrangements in managing political stress, Edward J. Kane; Subordinating the Fed to political authorities will not control inflationary tendencies, King Bonoion, Leroy O. Laney, John McArthur, and Thomas Willett

Thomas Willett is Horton Professor of Economics, Claremont Graduate School and Claremont-McKenno College, and Director of the Claremont Center for Economic Policy Studies. Duke Press Policy Studies

544 pages, tables, index. LC 88-7148.
ISBN 0-8223-0824-x, cloth, $62.50
ISBN 0-8223-0842-8, paper, $21.95
September

Gubernatorial Transitions

The 1983 and 1984 Elections

Thad L. Beyle, editor
Preface by Barry Van Lare, National Governors' Association

"Thad Beyle has done a splendid job, and this volume is a worthy successor to Gubernatorial Transitions: The 1982 Elections. The book adds much to this important subject both to practitioners and to instructors of state government." —Lorry Soboto, University of Virginia

Contents

Gubernatorial transitions: Lessons from the 1982, 1983, and 1984 elections and transitions, Thad Beyle (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill); Perspectives on transitions: Protecting options, Robert Huefner (University of Utah); Kentucky, 1983–1984, Malcolm E. Jewell and Philip Roeder (University of Kentucky); Missouri in 1984, Deon L. Yorwood and Richard J. Hordy (University of Missouri, Columbia); North Carolina, 1984–1985, Joel A. Thompson (Appalachian State University); North Dakota, 1984–1985: Bottling it out in the budgetary bonanzas, Theodore S. Pedeliski (University of North Dakota); Rhode Island, 1984–1985, Elmer Cornwell (Brown University); The 1984–1985 gubernatorial transition in Utah, Robert Benedict and Lauren Holland (University of Utah); The Gardner transition: The changing of the guard in Washington, Hermon D. Lujon (University of Washington); The 1984 gubernatorial transition in West Virginia: Rockefeller to Moore, David J. Webber (University of Missouri, formerly University of West Virginia); An incumbent succession in Indiana, James Owens (Indiana-Purdue, Ft. Wayne); Lieutenant Governors, Deon L. Yorwood

Thad Beyle is Professor of Political Science at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

384 pages, index.
ISBN 0-8223-0858-4, $42.50
October

Also available

Gubernatorial Transitions

The 1982 Election

Thad L. Beyle, editor
Foreword by Terry Sanford

"One of the more difficult problems in state government management is the transition from one governor to another; this is particularly difficult when a governor from one party replaces a governor from another. This often results in the complete elimination of the governor's staff, changes in the leadership of all major departments, and turnover in other key positions. No corporation, even in a hostile take-over, would ever handle the transition the way we do in the states. . . .

"Beyle examines the transitions following the 1982 elections in Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, Texas, and Wisconsin in case studies. Beyle finds the transitions are becoming increasingly professional!" —State Policy Reports

1985. x, 500 pages. LC 85-6748.
ISBN 0-8223-0642-5, $49.75

Being Governor The View from the Office

Thad L. Beyle and
Lynn Muchmore, editors

"A genuine service: intended for those who are specialists in state government and executive relations, and should have a place on the shelves of such experts." —Perspective

1983. xi, 237 pages. LC 82-24234.
ISBN 0-8223-0506-2, $32.50

Catastrophic Coastal Storms

Hazard Mitigation and Development Management

David R. Godschalk, David J. Brower, and Timothy Beatley

As people cluster on the coast in increasing numbers, coastal populations become more vulnerable to severe damage from catastrophic coastal storms. The authors contend that current public policy has proved unable to cope with this growing problem, and in response they present a comprehensive analysis of coastal storm hazards, standard policy approaches, and promising new means of managing coastal growth.

Catastrophic Coastal Storms offers a solution to the problem by proposing a merger of hazard mitigation with development management, basing this on extensive surveys of at-risk coastal locations and case studies of post-hurricane recovery. Starting with the local level of government and proceeding to state and federal levels, the authors suggest a strategy for overcoming the formidable obstacles to safeguarding the shoreline from hurricanes and other severe storms.

David Godschalk is Professor of City and Regional Planning, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; David J. Brower is Professor in the Center for Urban and Regional Studies, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; and Timothy Beatley is Assistant Professor in the Division of Urban and Environmental Planning, School of Architecture, University of Virginia.

Duke Press Policy Studies
344 pages, illustrations, tables, maps, index. LC 88-9572.
ISBN 0-8223-0855-x, $47.50
January

Also of interest

Managing Disaster

Strategies and Policy Perspectives

Edited by Louise K. Camfort
1988. xii, 420 pages. LC 87-20049.
ISBN 0-8223-0800-2, cloth, $58.00
ISBN 0-8223-0816-9, paper, $19.95

The Abolition of Slavery and the Aftermath of Emancipation in Brazil

A special issue of the Hispanic American Historical Review containing articles on the impact of emancipation (and also comparing the Brazilian experience with that of other societies) will be published in paperback book form in the fall of 1988. Please see the Hispanic American Historical Review listing under Journals for more information.

Contributors. Rebecca J. Scott, Seymour Drescher, Hebe Maria Mattos de Castro, George Reid Andrews, and Robert M. Levine

France at the Polls, 1981 and 1986

Three National Elections

Howard Pennimon, editor
An American Enterprise Institute Book

This volume deals with the presidential elections of April and May 1981, particularly with the important runoff contest between incumbent president Valéry Giscard d'Estaing and the Socialist party challenger François Mitterrand; the legislative elections held in 1981 following Mitterrand's victory; and the legislative elections of 1986, held at the completion of Mitterrand's five-year term.

Contributors

Roland Cayrol, Jean Charlat, Manica Charlot, John Frears, Pascal Perrineau, Roy Pierce, Thomas R. Rachon, Richard M. Scammon, Marie-France Tainet

368 pages, index. LC 87-35743.
ISBN 0-8223-0833-9, cloth, $59.95
ISBN 0-8223-0845-2, paper, $19.95
October
For other titles in the At the Polls series, see page 24.

Competition in the Health Care Sector: Ten Years Later

Warren Greenberg, editor

This special Summer 1988 issue of the Journal of Health Politics, Policy and Law will be published in book form in fall 1988—slightly revised and with an added index. See the Special Issues section under Journals at the back of this catalog for a description of the issue and a list of contributors.

Essentials of the Theory of Fiction

Edited by Michael J. Hoffman and
Patrick D. Murphy

What accounts for the power of stories to both entertain us and interpret our world? This question has long compelled the attention of storytellers and students of literature alike—particularly in recent decades—and their answers have opened an important window on larger questions about the nature of culture, as well as of interpretation and understanding.

Essentials of the Theory of Fiction requires no prior knowledge of the subject and provides a comprehensive view of the theory of fiction from the nineteenth century, through modernism and postmodernism, to the present.

Contents

The art of fiction, Henry James; Epic and novel, M. M. Bakhtin; The lyrical novel, Ralph Freedman; The literature of replenishment, John Barth; What makes a short story short?, Norman Friedman; Approach to the novella through its form, Mary D. Springer; Defining the short story, Suzanne C. Ferguson; The historical interpretation of literature, Edmund Wilson; Manners, morals, and the novel, Lionel Trilling; Writing and the novel, Roland Barthes; Towards a feminist poetics, Elaine Showalter; Marxist aesthetics and literary realism, Georg Lukács; Literary fiction and reality, Frank Kermode; Realism reconsidered, George Levine; Spatial form in modern literature, Joseph Frank; Technique as discovery, Mark Schorer; The literary motif, William Freedman; Breaking sentence; Breaking sequence, Rachel B. DuPlessis; Mr. Bennett and Mrs. Brown, Virginia Woolf; Flat and round characters, E. M. Forster; The concept of character in fiction, William H. Gass; The concept of plot, R. S. Crane; Plot in the modern novel, J. Arthur Haneswell; Distance and point of view, Wayne Booth; The concept of point of view, Mitchell A. Leaska; Introduction to the study of the narrative, Gerald Prince; Discourse: Nonnarrated stories, Seymour Chatman; Reading as construction, Tzvetan Todorov; Time and narrative in A la

recherche du temps perdu, Gérard Genette; Time sequence in spatial fiction, Iva Vidan

Michael Hoffman is Chair of the English Department, University of California, Davis; Patrick Murphy is a member of the English Department, Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

488 pages, index. LC 87-36606.
ISBN 0-8223-0826-6, cloth, $47.50
ISBN 0-8223-0844-4, paper, $17.95
July

Traherne in Dialogue

Heidegger, Lacan, and Derrida
A. Leigh DeNeef

This study makes two general claims. First, that the thinking of Martin Heidegger, Jacques Lacan, and Jacques Derrida provides a useful, and in many ways essential, ground for understanding and analyzing the work of the seventeenth-century poet Thomas Traherne. Second, that the application of modern theories to Traherne makes the three contemporary theorists accessible in new and important ways. Insofar as each of these claims seeks to negotiate between the demands of a practical criticism and the broader implications of an interdisciplinary literary theory, Traherne in Dialogue itself attempts to address a wider audience than that concerned with the poet alone. Indeed, the fundamental assumption of this book is that Renaissance studies, even those that promote the New Historicism, cannot proceed along artificial historical boundaries. By the same token, modern literary theory cannot remain blind to the ways in which its concerns have been anticipated by classical texts.

DeNeef also seeks to demonstrate several key points about the writings of Traherne: they offer a sustained and rigorous analysis of questions of Being; they articulate a thorough and penetrating survey of the mechanics of desire; and they are consistently structured by the economic laws of a discursive supplementarity. Each stage of these arguments is polemically situated in relation to traditional Trahernean scholarship, which has concluded that in general the poet is more mystical than logical, more rhapsodic than poetic, and more whimsical than careful. At the same time, DeNeef concludes that supplementarity—not the usually accepted différance—is the major innovation in Derridean thought and is more significant for literary study.

Leigh DeNeef is Professor of English and Associate Dean of the Graduate School, Duke University. He is also the author of This Poetick Liturgie: Robert Herrick's Ceremonial Mode (Duke, 1974) and Spenser and the Motives of Metaphor (Duke, 1982).

312 pages, index. LC 87-31952.
ISBN 0-8223-0832-0, $42.50
September

Fascination

Faulkner's Fiction, 1919-1936

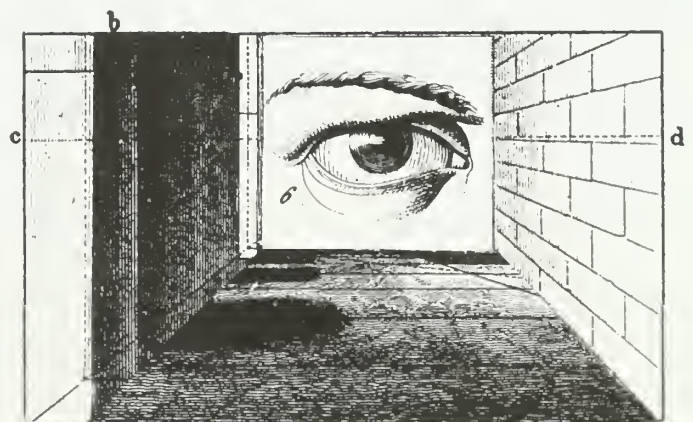

Michel Gresset
Translated by Thomas West

Fascination covers Faulkner's apprenticeship as a writer, his transformation from a personal self to a real, substantial, narrative consciousness, moving from his earliest poetry and stories through Flags in the Dust, Sartoris, Sanctuary, Light in August, and As I Lay Dying to Pylon. Gresset draws an impressive scholarly resources ranging from manuscript material to the philosophical and psychological literature of Freud, Lacan, and Sartre. His thesis is that Faulkner is not only a highly visual artist but also the paradigm of all tragic idealists, whose writings proceed from a psychological state ("fascination") that aesthetics do not reveal. Sartre's discussion of "the Other" provides the key term of the title, fascination, or the "poétique du regard" (translated variously as the poetics of "the look" or "the gaze"). Following the common thread in Faulkner's fiction of the taboos of sight, of looking, staring, and becoming obsessed, which links life and fiction, Gresset illustrates the incantatory role that fiction plays for life and thus explores the mystery of literary creation itself. An analysis of Sartoris and Sanctuary forms a centerpiece for Gresset's argument, best evincing the dramatization of fascination and containing a reservoir of later developments in structure and themes. Ideas related to "the gaze" carry a whole vocabulary of related terms: focusing, perversion, glamour, shame, surprise, astonishment, and outrage, which provide a fresh insight into the drama of Faulkner's fiction as Gresset traces their manifestation through the various works.

Michel Gresset is Professor of English at the Institut d'Anglais, Université de Paris VII. Thomas West is Professor of English, University of East Anglia, Norwich.

Approx. 215 pages, notes, bibliography, index.
ISBN 0-8223-0811-8, $45.00
January

Shifting Ground

Exile Literature from the Spanish Civil War

Michael Ugarte

Attending to both canonical and neglected works by Spanish émigrés from the Civil War, Ugarte reveals the particular importance of this literature for our century and for the study of literature itself. Through reference points in the works of Thomas Mann, Bertold Brecht, and Vladimir Nabokov, as well as recent discussions of exile by Derrida, Morgoreto Ferguson, and Giuseppe Mazzoni, the author describes the Spanish experience of exile in a series of theoretical and practical readings that illuminate a wide variety of crucial literary transmutations—from politics to aesthetics, from author to text, from autobiography to novel, from testimony to literature, and from real experience to poetry.

Ugarte goes beyond the usual corpus of exile literature to consider works as diverse as Llorens's Liberales y románticos and Cernuda's Lo realidad y el deseo and includes memoirs, political tracts, and literary criticism. The author concludes with in-depth considerations of the prolific Max Aub, the poet Luis Cernuda, and the well-known novelist Juan Goytisolo, arguably the most important authors to emerge from the post-Civil War migration.

Michael Ugarte is Associate Professor of Romance Languages, University of Missouri, Columbia.

256 pages, index.
ISBN 0-8223-0857-6, $36.50
January

Of related interest

Idle Fictions: The Hispanic Vanguard Novel

Gustavo Pérez Firmat

1983. xi, 175 pages. LC 82-12773.
ISBN 0-8223-0528-3, $24.75

Literature and Liminality

Festive Readings in the Hispanic Tradition

Gustavo Pérez Firmat

1986. xxi, 182 pages. LC 85-13077.
ISBN 0-8223-0658-1, $27.50

Chinese Narrative Poetry

The Late Han through T'ang Dynasties

Dore J. Levy

Chinese Narrative Poetry brings a new perspective to some of China's best-loved and most influential poems, including Ts'oi Yen's "Poem of Affliction," Po Chu-yi's "Song of Everlasting Sorrow," and Wei Chuong's recently rediscovered "Song of the Lady of Ch'in." Composed in the shih form during the Late Han, Six Dynasties, and T'ang periods, these poems stand out as masterworks of narrative art. Yet paradoxically, their narrative qualities have been little recognized or explored in either traditional Chinese or modern Western scholarship. The reason for this neglect is that while Western literary traditions acknowledge their origins in epic poetry and thus take narrative for granted, the Chinese tradition is fundamentally based on lyric and does not admit of a separate category for narrative poetry.

Drawing on both classical Chinese critical works and the most recent Western contributions to the theory of narrative, Levy shows how narrative elements developed out of the lyrical conventions of shih. In doing so, she accomplishes a double purpose, guiding the modern reader to an understanding of the nature of narrative in Chinese poetry and shedding light on the ways in which Chinese poets adopted the devices of lyric to the needs of a completely different expressive mode.

Students of Chinese literature will welcome this groundbreaking study, but Chinese Narrative Poetry will interest other scholars as well since it addresses questions of crucial importance for literary theory and comparative literature—particularly the central issue of the applicability of Western critical concepts to non-Western literature and culture.

Dore Levy is Assistant Professor of Comparative Literature, Brown University.

224 pages, notes, biblia., index.
ISBN 0-8223-0863-0, $32.50
January

On Emerson

The Best from American Literature

Edwin H. Cady and Louis Budd, editors

From 1929 to the latest issue, American Literature has been the foremost journal expressing the findings of those who study our national literature. AL has published the best work of literary historians, critics, and bibliographers, ranging from the founders of the discipline to the current critics and researchers who are expanding the horizons of literary discourse. The longevity of this excellence lends a special distinction to the articles in American Literature.

Contents

Emerson and the frontier, Ernest Morchond; Melville as a critic of Emerson, William Broswell; Emerson and Quakerism, Frederick B. Tolles; William James and Emerson, Frederic I. Carpenter; Emerson and for it at any future time that suits your convenience, to E.P. Riebel at 100 Pine St. N.Y., if the journal were yet even to pay its publisher.

Your friend & servant,
R. W. Riebel Emerson

Herman Melville

Cudworth: Plastic nature and Transcendental art, Vivian C. Hopkins; Emerson and the James family, William T. Staffard; The riddle of Emerson's "Sphinx," Thamos R. Whitaker; Emerson an Plato: The fire's center, Ray Benoit; Transcendentalism and psychotherapy: Another look at Emerson, William E. Bridges; Henry Miller, Emerson, and the divided self, Paul R. Jackson; Spelling time: The reader in Emerson's "Circles," David M. Wyatt; Children of the fire: Charles Ives an Emerson and art, David B. Robinsan; Canvers Francis and Emerson, Joel Myersan; Emerson and Antinamianism: The legacy of the sermons, Wesley T. Matt; Emerson's "Immortality": The problem of authorship, Glen M. Johnson; Emerson, Kneeland, and the Divinity School Address, Robert E. Burkholder

Edwin Cady is Andrew W. Melian Professor in the Humanities at Duke University, and Louis Budd is James B. Duke Professor of English, also at Duke. Bath Cady and Budd have served on the Editorial Board of American Literature for many years, including service as Chairman of the Board of Editors.

296 pages, index. LC 88-3750.
ISBN 0-8223-0861-4, $33.50
October

Now available

On Whitman

1987. xi, 300 pages. LC 87-8997.
ISBN 0-8223-0752-9, $33.50

On Mark Twain

1987. xi, 304 pages. LC 87-9020.
ISBN 0-8223-0759-6, $33.50

On Melville

The Best from American Literature

Louis J. Budd and Edwin Cady, editors

Contents

The anatomy of Melville's fame, O. W. Riegel; Herman Melville's "I and My Chimney," Merton M. Sealts; Melville's "sociology," R. E. Watters; Melville's "The Tawn-Ho's Story," Sherman Paul; Melville's "'Soiled' Fish at the Sea," John W. Nichol; Melville an Homer, R. W. B. Lewis; Some notes on the structure of The Confidence-Man, John G. Cawelti; Hawthorne, Melville, and "Blackness," Hubert H. Hoeltje; The domestic adventurer in Melville's tales, Judith Slater; Redburn and the failure of mythic criticism, James Schraeter; "Cack-A-Doodle-Dea!" and some legends in Melville scholarship, Sidney P. Mass; Melville and the Negro: From Typee to "Benita Cereno," Eleanor E. Simpson; Melville's bachelors and moths: Interpretation through symbol and metaphor, Beryl Rowland; Melville and the theme of timonism: From Pierre to The Confidence-Man, Charles N. Watson, Jr.; Vere's use of the "forms": Means and ends in Billy Budd, Christopher W. Sten; The composition of Moby-Dick, James Barbour; Form as vision in Herman Melville's Clarel, Bryan C. Short; Moby-Dick: The transformation of the Foustian ethos, Gustaf Van Cromphout; Melville's comic debate: Geniality and the aesthetics of repose, John Bryant

Approx. 300 pages, index.
LC 87-9020.
ISBN 0-8223-0867-3, $33.50
November

The Money Doctor in the Andes

The Kemmerer Missions, 1923–1933

Paul W. Drake

"The Money Doctor in the Andes is a superb work of synthesis and description, one that will immediately become the reference point for all subsequent work on Andean history for this period. Drake's book will stand as the model of post-dependency school analysis for a generation of historians who undertake the study of Latin America's external economic relations."—John Coatsworth, University of Chicago

The Money Doctor in the Andes is an account of the technical assistance missions to five Andean republics—Colombia, Ecuador, Chile, Bolivia, and Peru—undertaken by Princeton University economist Edwin Walter Kemmerer during the 1920s. Drake demonstrates that in each case the Kemmerer mission recommended an identical series of monetary, fiscal, and banking reforms, adding occasional recommendations on everything from administrative reorganization to penal code reform as local circumstances seemed to warrant. In each case, too, local legislatures adapted all the main Kemmerer proposals virtually without debate or modifications.

Drake links the Kemmerer missions to vital developments in the political and economic history of the Andean republics in the interwar period. He analyzes the domestic interest groups and political forces whose convergent strategies gave the Kemmerer missions their remarkable record in achieving local success for the reforms proposed. Second, Drake situates the Kemmerer missions at the center of a process of political modernization that created new institutions and policy agencies in each of the five countries; the missions thereby contributed to the expansion of the central government as an agent of development in ways that later differed sharply from Kemmerer's orthodox policies. Finally, The Money Doctor in the Andes regards developments in the Andean countries in the context of the region's developing economic ties to the United States. Expectations that Kemmerer's plans would simultaneously attract foreign capital and control inflation drew support from sectors as diverse as trade unions and landowners. When the Depression deepened, Kemmerer's policies proved counterproductive and the fragile consensus that had installed them fell apart, but the political and administrative reforms endured—with far-reaching consequences.

Paul Drake is Institute of the Americas Professor of Political Science and History and Director, Center for Iberian and Latin American Studies, University of California, San Diego. In 1987–88 he served as President of the Latin American Studies Association.

448 pages, notes, biblio., index.
ISBN 0-8223-0880-0, $50.00
January

Street Children of Cali

Lewis Aptekar

"Here is a book—a psycho-ethnography of children who are among the 40 million street people of Latin America—that combines approaches rooted in anthropology, clinical psychology, and tough-minded investigative journalism. Aptekar has constructed a vivid portrait of life on the streets of Cali, Colombia; courageously and sensitively, he enters the world of the gamins, and shows it to us almost from an insider's perspective.

"Clinical psychologists, social scientists, and social workers all can learn from Aptekar's blending of qualitative and quantitative research techniques, and so can anyone with a concern for street people."—Marshall H. Segall, Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences, Syracuse University

Children throng the streets of urban Latin America. Visitors from developed nations, unused to unsupervised children in such profusion and accosted by impertunate children selling trivial goods or services, wonder who they are, where they came from, where they go. They are often explained as the abandoned offspring of the very poor or the product of delinquency and degeneracy, giving rise to ambivalent feelings of pity and fear in both local and foreign observers.

Systematic and careful studies of this large population have been locking. Observers often take the self-serving and mendacious responses of these gamins as true indicators of their lives, tending to reinforce the romanticized view of street children. Aptekor's rigorous study of the children, based on a year of close contact, provides real information on where the children come from, where they go at night, and how they survive, socially and economically. The resulting picture reveals not only the social realities in Latin America but also the adaptability and resourcefulness of children in ways startling to Western middle-class conceptions of child development.

Lewis Aptekor is Associate Professor of Counselor Education, Son Jose State University, Son Jose, California.

272 pages, photographs, index.
LC 87-34324.
ISBN 0-8223-0834-7, $38.50
October

Psychobiography and Life Narratives

Dan P. McAdams and Richard L. Ochberg, editors

This special March 1988 issue of the Journal of Personality will be published in book form early in the fall of 1988—slightly revised and with an added index. See the Special Issues section under Journals of the back of this catalog for a description of the issue and a list of contributors. Ideal for course use in this rapidly developing field of study.

Domination and Cultural Resistance

Authority and Power Among an Andean People

Roger Neil Rasnake

"This rich and novel work of ethnography transcends the image of Andean villages as atomized fractions of an archaic 'Andean world.' Reconnecting the village with a contemporary regional-ethnic complex that owes its survival to distinctive processes of symbolic reproduction, it also reconnects Andean ethnography with themes of lasting symbolic and political interest."
—Frank Solomon, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Domination and Cultural Resistance examines the social life of the Yuro, a Quechua-speaking Andean ethnic group of central Bolivia, and focuses especially on their indigenous authorities, the kuroqkuno or elders. Combining ethno-historical research with contemporary fieldwork, Rasnake traces the evolution of leadership roles within the changing composition of the native Andean social groupings, the ayllus—from the consolidation of pre-Hispanic Aymara polities, through the pressures of the Spanish colonial regime and the increasing fragmentation of the republican era, to the present.

Rasnake explores the impact of burdensome exactions in labor and tribute imposed on native groups by the colonial system and the part these played in shaping and sometimes distorting native leadership. Today, the role of the Yuro authorities comes to the fore in the sponsorship of festivals. The author analyzes the world of meaning created in festival rituals, whose significance is rooted in an Andean symbolic language. He argues that the symbolic universe enacted by the kuroqkuno presents a coherent orientation to the social realities of subordination endured by the Yuro. These symbolic formulations provide the basis for cultural resistance to the dominant society that lies at the core of Yuro identity.

Roger Rasnake is an advisor in anthropology of the Program for Alternative Development in Cochobomba, Bolivia.

344 pages, photographs, maps, notes, tables, index. LC 87-35834.
ISBN 0-8223-0809-6, $39.95
September

Political Reasoning and Cognition

A Piagetian View

Shawn Rosenberg, Dana Ward, and Stephen Chilton

—
This work presents a new, alternative approach to studying the formation of political ideologies and attitudes, addressing a concern in political science that research in this area is at a crossroads. Whereas mainstream studies have concentrated on what individuals know and prefer in a political sense, this work asks how individuals know and prefer. What deep structure underlies what people know about politics and want from it?

The authors provide an epistemologically grounded critique of the literature on belief-systems, explaining why traditional approaches have reached the limits of usefulness. Following the lead of such continental theorists as Jürgen Habermas and Anthony Giddens, who stress the importance of Jean Piaget to the development of a strong theoretical perspective in political psychology, the authors develop a different epistemology, theory, and research strategy based on Piaget, then apply it in two empirical studies of belief-systems, and finally present a third theoretical study of political culture and political development.

The authors address a wide audience, going well beyond the belief-systems literature to take up current problems in political culture, political institutions, political development, political consciousness, analysis of power, and concepts of democracy, in short, the central issue of how political reasoning affects political behavior.

Shawn Rosenberg is Assistant Professor of Social Science, University of California, Irvine; Dana Ward is Associate Professor of Political Studies, Pitzer College, Claremont, California; and Stephen Chilton is Assistant Professor of Political Science, University of Minnesota, Duluth.

192 pages, index.
ISBN 0-8223-0856-8, $32.50
January

Evolutionary Systems and Society

A General Theory

Vilmos Csányi
Foreword by Bela Benathy, former President, International Society for General Systems Research

This work is a bold new effort to embrace all aspects of life—molecular, cellular, behavioral, and cultural—within the formulation of a general theory of evolution that extends classical Darwinian theory to include human society.

Csányi sets out to demonstrate that the interactions of the components in the biological realm (molecules, cells, organisms, ecosystems) and in societies (people, artifacts, ideas) all have a replicative organization. He argues that this replicative organization (a mechanism for information storage and reproduction) exists in human societies in a form that is analogous to biological systems.

The general theory of evolution helps explain the spontaneous emergence of replicative functions and organizations in biological systems, and it can also be employed to evaluate new departures in societal systems. Csányi uses this concept to explore the origins and evolution of human society and to explain the application of the replicative paradigm to the processes of the animal and human mind and to culture. He points out that human culture meets all the criteria for classification as a biological system. Its basic components—people, ideas, and man-made artifacts —functionally form a complex replicative network. These behave as a systemic unit and evolve at an ever-increasing rate.

In summarizing the implications of his theory, the author asserts that coordinated replication governed by a regulatory system is necessary if we are to avoid nuclear war and insure human survival.

Vilmos Csányi is Professor of Ethology and Behavior Genetics at the Lorand Eotvos University of Budapest.

304 pages, biblia., index. LC 88-7149.
ISBN 0-8223-0836-3, $49.50
January

Now available in paperback

Free Trade and Moral Philosophy

Rethinking the Sources of Adam Smith's Wealth of Nations

Richard F. Teichgraeber III

"In Teichgraeber's assessment, the 'main prize' to be gained from studying Smith is greater accuracy in measuring the purpose and achievement represented by The Wealth of Nations. . . . Teichgraeber writes with the sure hand of one whose mastery of the material is indeed strong; better still, his use of what he knows renders a major service to his colleagues, who have recognized but dimly what he makes clear; and best of all, he restores to scholarship some of the artistry which has for so long been eclipsed by pedantry."—Robert Sutherland, The Review of Politics

"Free Trade and Moral Philosophy is interesting and challenging in a number of ways. Two stand out. In the first place, Teichgraeber offers a reassessment of the relative importance for Smith of Hutcheson and Hume, arguing that both in moral philosophy and in jurisprudence Smith was in significant respects closer to Hutcheson. . . . Teichgraeber's second challenging conclusion concerns the contribution of the Wealth of Nations to the argument for laissez-faire in the economy. . . . Teichgraeber offers much to debate."—John Robertson, TLS

First published 1986. xviii,
212 pages. LC 85-25408.
ISBN 0-8223-0886-X, paper, $12.95

Economic Adjustment and Reform in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union

Essays in Honor of Franklyn D. Holzman

Josef C. Brada, Ed A. Hewett, and Thomas A. Wolf, editors

Economic reform, structural adjustment, macroeconomic stabilization, and participation in the world economy are aspects of the same issue—long-term economic viability of centrally planned economies. The contributors to this volume show how this complex issue affects the interconnected economies of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

Contents

Overview. Economic stabilization, structural adjustment and economic reform, Josef Brada, Ed Hewett, and Thomas Wolf

Macroeconomic stabilization. Devaluation in modified planned economies: A preliminary model for Hungary, Thomas Wolf; Conditionality and adjustment in Hungary and Yugoslavia, Laura Tysan, Sherman Robinson, and Leyla Waads

Structural adjustment and intra-CMEA economic relations. Industrial policy in Eastern Europe, Josef Brada; The evolution of CMEA institutions and policies and the need for structural adjustment, Marie Lavigne; CMEA institutions and policies vs. structural adjustment, Jozef M. van Brabant; The content and controversy of Soviet trade relations with Eastern Europe, 1970–1984, Michael Marrse and Jan Vanous

Participation in the larger world economy. East-West trade policies: Implications for the CMEA region, John P. Hardt and Danna L. Gald; Centrally planned economies in the IMF, the World Bank, and the GATT, Paul Marer

Economic systems and reforms. How to create markets in Eastern Europe (the Hungarian case), Marton Tardos; The politics of "creating efficient markets in socialism": Comments on Marton Tardos, Ellen Camissa; Further comments on Marton Tardos, Paul Marer; Soviet central planning: Probing the limits of the traditional model, Ed Hewett; Economic reform and foreign trade in Poland, Urszula Plawiec; Changes in the Polish foreign trade system and adjustment, Z. M. Fallenbuchl; Economic reform and foreign trade in Poland, David M. Kemme

Josef Brada is Professor of Economics, Arizona State University; Ed Hewett is a Senior Fellow at the Brookings Institution; and Thomas Wolf is Senior Economist, International Monetary Fund.

Duke Press Policy Studies
Approx. 500 pages, biblia., index.
ISBN 0-8223-0852-5, $67.50
January

Religion and Nationalism in Soviet and East European Politics

Pedro Ramet, editor
Completely revised and expanded edition

From reviews of the first edition

"This wide-ranging collection makes an important contribution to its subject area. It covers a broad range of topics . . . it is an enlightening work [and] the scholarship is uniformly impressive. . . .

"The main strength of the book is that it is needed. Very little has been done to explore the nexus between religion and nationalism, and both sides of the subject cry out for explanation. . . . Ramet is especially to be praised for conceiving and executing an important, thoughtful, and well-done piece of scholarship."—Slavic Review

"Excels in its balanced treatment of both background and current politics."—Foreign Affairs

New material

The historical role of religious institutions in Eastern Europe and their place in the communist party-state, Peter F. Sugar; Jewish nationality and religion in the USSR and Eastern Europe, Zvi Gitelman; Religion and nationalism in Soviet Georgia and Armenia, Stephen Jones; The Luther revival: Aspects of national Abrenzung and confessional Gemeinschaft in the German Democratic Republic, Dan Beck; Christianity and national heritage among the Czechs and Slovaks, Pedro Ramet

Revised and updated chapters

Interplay of religious policy and nationalities policy in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, Pedro Ramet; The neo-Slavophile trend and its relation to the contemporary religious revival in the USSR, Dimitry Pospelovsky; Religion and nationalism in Ukraine, Vasyl Morkus; Nationalism and the Catholic church in Lithuania, Kestutis K. Girnius; Islam and nationalism in Soviet Central Asia, James Crichtlow; Church and nationality in postwar Poland, Vincent C. Chrypinski; Religion and nationalism in Hungary, Leslie Laszlo; Religion and nationalism in Yugoslavia, Pedro Ramet; Religion and nationalism in Romania, Trond Gilberg; Nationalism and the Bulgarian Orthodox church, Spas T. Raikin; The fate of Islam in the Balkans: A comparison of four state policies, Zachary T. Irwin

Pedro Ramet is Assistant Professor at the Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies, University of Washington, Seattle; much of the work on this book was done during a fellowship at the Kennan Institute.

560 pages, notes, index.

ISBN 0-8223-0854-1, cloth, $69.50

ISBN 0-8223-0891-6, paper, $24.95

January

Also of interest

Eastern Politics and Christianity in the Twentieth Century

Pedro Ramet, editor

1988. vii, 471 pages. LC 87-27029.

ISBN 0-8223-0827-4, $47.50

See also Gilberg, Coolition Strategies of Marxist Parties, page 10.

Prizewinners and Best-Sellers

Among the Afghans

Arthur Bonner

Among the Afghans has received a Citation for Excellence (Honorable Mention) from the Overseas Press Club of America in the 1987 Cornelius Ryan Award competition for the best book on foreign affairs.

"A well-researched, balanced, and compassionate account of the war. . . . Mr. Bonner is an objective observer who pursues the facts with vigor." — New York Times Book Review

1987. xvi, 366 pages, maps, photographs, references, index.

LC 87-22260.

ISBN 0-8223-0783-9, $27.95

The following titles have been selected Choice Outstanding Academic Books for 1987-88

Hungary and the Soviet Bloc

Charles Gati

"The author gives a fascinating, fresh, and original analysis of Hungarian politics; his book should be on every reading list of those interested in Eastern Europe." — Choice, March 1987

1986. ix, 246 pages. LC 86-19739.

ISBN 0-8223-0684-0, cloth, $40.00

ISBN 0-8223-0747-2, paper, $14.95

Presidential Selection

Alexander Heard and Michael Nelson, editors

"All the essays offer fresh insights on new issues and on perennial concerns. The studies collectively deepen and broaden our understanding of the presidential selection process." — Choice, January 1988

1987. x, 413 pages. LC 87-9164.

ISBN 0-8223-0750-2, cloth, $50.00

ISBN 0-8223-0785-5, paper, $17.95

Social change and literary language

The textualization of the past in thirteenth-century Old French historiography

Gabrielle M. Spiegel

Published in the fall 1987 issue of The Journal of Medieval and Renaissance Studies, Professor Spiegel's work has won the 1987 William Koren Prize for the best article on French history. The Koren Prize is awarded by the Society for French Historical Studies.

These four titles have recently been reprinted

Afghanistan and the Soviet Union

New and expanded edition

Henry S. Bradsher

"Afghanistan and the Soviet Union is the most comprehensive book in English about Afghanistan since the coup of 1978. It should be read by all who are interested in Afghanistan and the USSR." — Slovic Review 1985. viii, 384 pages. LC 85-15993.

ISBN 0-8223-0556-9, cloth, $37.50

ISBN 0-8223-0690-5, paper, $12.95

The British Prime Minister

Second edition

Anthony King

"This collection of durable essays provides a solid profile of the office of prime minister in Great Britain, including descriptions of how recent incumbents have tailored it to their styles." — Booklist

1985. xv, 275 pages. LC 84-24711.

ISBN 0-8223-0634-4, cloth, $30.95

ISBN 0-8223-06350-2, paper, $12.95

The Creativity Question

Albert Rothenberg and Carl Hausman, editors

"This volume will be a standard source book for anyone with a serious interest in the problems of creativity." — Journal of Aesthetics and Art Criticism

1976. xiv, 366 pages. LC 75-30132.

ISBN 0-8223-0353-1, cloth, $35.00

ISBN 0-8223-0354-X, paper, $14.50

The Passion of Ingmar Bergman

Frank Gado

"Bergmanians must have this indispensable study, which will be the cornerstone of all future studies. It's intelligent, deep-running, and readably unpedantic." — Kirkus

1986. xvii, 547 pages. LC 86-19731.

ISBN 0-8223-0585-2, cloth, $49.50

ISBN 0-8223-0586-0, paper, $19.95

Living with the Shore

General editors: Orrin H. Pilkey, Jr., and William J. Neal
Sponsored by The National Audubon Society™

These books provide information on living with the forces of nature rather than confronting them, minimizing the environmental hazards to property and life, and understanding clearly the escape routes from a hazardous area. In addition, they provide a sound basis for deciding where and what to buy and not buy on the shore, and field guides to the beaches of each region.

Representative contents

How the shareline works;
Shoreline engineering: the impossible dream; Selecting a site on a beach; The coast, land use, and the law; Building or buying a house near the beach; Guide to local, state, and federal agencies involved in coastal development

Orrin Pilkey, Jr., is James B. Duke Professor of Geology, Duke University. William Neal is Professor of Geology, Grand Valley State University, Allendale, Michigan.

Titles now available

The Beaches Are Moving:
The Drowning of America's Shareline (overview volume to the series), paper, $10.95

Living with the West Florida
Shore, paper, $11.95

Living with the Alabama/
Mississippi Shore, paper, $11.95

Living with the Louisiana Shore,
paper, $9.95

Living with the Texas Shore,
paper, $9.95

Living with the South Carolina
Shore, paper, $9.95

From Currituck to Calobosh:
Living with North Carolina's
Barrier Islands, paper, $12.50

Living with the New Jersey
Shore, paper, $12.95

Living with Long Island's South
Shore, paper, $9.95

Living with the Lake Erie Shore,
paper, $12.95

Living with the California
Coast, paper, $14.95

Living with the Coast of Puget
Sound, paper, $12.95

Living with the East Florida
Shore, paper, $11.95

Many of the above titles are also available in a hardcover edition. We will be happy to send details. For a new book in this series, see page 7.

At the Polls

Howard R. Penniman, general editor

Published with the American
Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research

Duke University Press has joined with the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy
Research in publishing studies on the electoral process as it functions throughout the world.
Cited by Choice for its "high standards of scholarly analysis and objectivity," At the Polls provides both a chronicle of events and a thorough analysis of the election results.

Howard R. Penniman is Resident Scholar and Codirector of Political and Social Processes,
American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

Now available

Canada at the Polls, 1984

A Study of the Federal General
Elections

Howard Penniman, editor
Introduction by John Meisel

Contents

The flexible Canadian electorate, Lawrence LeDuc; Choosing new party leaders, R. K. Corty;
Opportunity regained: The Tory victory in 1984, George Perlin;
The dauphin and the doomed,
Stephen Clarkson; The 1984
Federal General Election and developments in Canadian party finance, Khayyam Zev Paltiel; The New Democratic party in the 1984 Federal General Election, J. Terence Morley; The media and the 1984 landslide, Frederick J. Fletcher; Reinventing the brokerage wheel: The Tory success in 1984, John C. Courtney

1988. xiii, 215 pages. LC 87-27252.
ISBN 0-8223-0805-3, clath, $47.50
ISBN 0-8223-0821-5, paper, $15.95

Ireland at the Polls: 1981, 1982, and 1987

Howard Penniman and Brian Farrell, editors

Contents

The context of three elections, Brian Farrell; Campaigns, manifestoes, and party finances, Joseph O'Malley; The voters, the issues, and the party system, Richard Sinnott; Party organization, vote management, and candidate selection: Toward the nationalization of electoral strategy in Ireland, Peter Mair; Government formation and ministerial selection, Brian Farrell; Women and the elections, Maurice Manning; Media coverage of the Irish elections of 1981-1982, John Bowman; The Senate elections, John Coakley; Prospects for democratic politics in Ireland, Basil Chubb; The general election of 1987, Brian Farrell and David M. Farrell

1987. xv, 275 pages. LC 87-13513.
ISBN 0-8223-0754-5, clath, $52.50
ISBN 0-8223-0786-3, paper, $17.50

Italy at the Polls, 1983

Howard Penniman, editor

Contents

Background, Norman Kogan; The electorate: An ambiguous verdict, Giacomo Sani; The Christian Democrats: The big losers, Douglas A. Wertmon; The ambiguous alternative: The

Italian Communist party in the 1983 elections, Marcello Fedele; The Italian Socialist party: An indispensable hostage, K. Robert Nilsson; The changing balance: The rise of the small parties in the 1983 elections, Robert Leonardi; Unions and politics in Italy, Carol A. Mershon; The mass media in the Italian elections of 1983, William E. Porter; Italian elections: The "Rashomon" effect, Joseph LaPalombara

1987. xii, 217 pages. LC 87-6716.
ISBN 0-8223-0755-3, clath, $39.95
ISBN 0-8223-0787-1, paper, $13.95

Competitive Elections in Developing Countries

Myron Weiner and Ergun Özbudun, editors

Contents

Empirical democratic theory, Myron Weiner; India, Myron Weiner; Sri Lanka, Robert N. Kearney; Malaysia, Lee Kam Hing and Michael Ong; Costa Rica and Jamaica, Mitchell A. Seligson; Nigeria, Henry Bienen; Venezuela, Daniel H. Levine; Portugal, Howard J. Wiarda; Turkey, Ergun Özbudun; Romania, 1919-1938, Mattei Dogan; Institutionalizing competitive elections in developing societies, Ergun Özbudun

1987. xii, 432 pages. LC 87-5341.
ISBN 0-8223-0685-9, clath, $55.00
ISBN 0-8223-0766-9, paper, $18.95

The American Elections of 1984

Austin Ranney, editor

"Of the volumes in this genre on the 1984 presidential election, this one is by far the best and most thorough."—Choice

1985. xii, 368 pages. LC 85-24573.
ISBN 0-8223-0230-6, clath, $36.50
ISBN 0-8223-0697-2, paper, $14.95

Britain at the Polls 1983

Austin Ranney, editor

"In the present batch of books this is the most useful . . . a straightforward analysis [and] good meat-and-potatoes stuff."—TLS 1985. xiv, 227 pages. LC 84-24646.

ISBN 0-8223-0619-0, clath, $27.50
ISBN 0-8223-0620-4, paper, $13.95

Spain at the Polls, 1977, 1979, and 1982

Howard Penniman and Eusebio Mujol-León, editors

"Several essays break new ground, notably the discussion of regional parties in Catalonia and the Basque provinces and Juan Roldan's excellent essay on the role of the mass media in the Spanish transition."—SAIS Review

1985. xviii, 372 pages. LC 85-20523.
ISBN 0-8223-0663-8, clath, $42.50
ISBN 0-8223-0695-6, paper, $14.95

Of related interest

Parties and Elections in Greece

The Search for Legitimacy

Richard Clogg

The author examines the antecedents of the present party system and examines in detail the policies and structure of the parties currently represented in parliament, as well as various small parties across the political spectrum. Emphasis is placed on Greece's postwar electoral experience and in particular on an analysis of the 1964, 1974, 1977, 1981, and 1985 election results.

Richard Clogg is Reader in Modern Greek History, King's College, University of London.

1988. xvii, 268 pages, notes, index. LC 87-30376.
ISBN 0-8223-0794-4, clath, $38.95
ISBN 0-8223-0823-1, paper, $16.95

Far France at the Polls, please see page 13.

Duke Press Policy Studies

Some recent titles in this series

Resolving Disputes Between Nations

Coercion or Conciliation?

Martin Patchen

1988. xiii, 366 pages. LC 87-26845.
ISBN 0-8223-0764-2, clath, $42.50
ISBN 0-8223-0819-3, paper, $14.95

World Deforestation in the Twentieth Century

John F. Richards and Richard P. Tucker, editors

1988. 304 pages. LC 87-31953.
ISBN 0-8223-0784-7, $47.50

For new books in this series, see pages 10, 11, and 22.

Newly available from Duke

Poetics Today

International Journal for Theory and Analysis of Literature and Communication

Coeditors: Benjamin Harshav
(Hrushovski), Department of Comparative Literature, Yale
University; Itamar Even-Zohar, The Porter Institute for Poetics and Semiotics, Tel Aviv University

Beginning in 1988 Poetics Today, formerly published in Israel for Tel Aviv University, will be published by Duke University Press. Published in English, it is widely recognized as one of the most important journals in the world in the fields of literary theory and comparative literature.

The editorial board of Poetics Today provides a who's who of scholars in literature and literary theory, and many of the contributors are equally distinguished. To illustrate, one of the 1988 issues, guest edited by Paul Hernadi, focuses on "The Rhetoric of Interpretation and the Interpretation of Rhetoric." Its contributors include Hayden White, Jonathan Culler, Edward Pechter, Martin Jay, Terry Eagleton, Houston Baker, Richard Ohmann, Dominick La Capra, Susan Handelman, Renato Rosaldo, Robert Berkhofer, and Michael Holquist.

Other topical issues planned for 1988 and 1989 include: Interpretation in context in science and culture; Constructive moves in literary theory; Literature and ideology: The

Hebrew renaissance; Literature and art; Slavic theories of literature; History of consciousness; The question of ideology

Quarterly, current volume 9
Subscription prices for 1988: individuals, $22.50; institutions, $35.00

American Literature

A Journal of Literary History,
Criticism, and Bibliography

Louis J. Budd, editor

Published in cooperation with the American Literature Section of the Modern Language Association, American Literature has been regarded since its inception as the preeminent periodical in its field. Each issue contains articles covering the works of several American authors—from colonial to contemporary—as well as an extensive book review section. An additional section provides brief summaries of recent articles on American literature from other periodicals. Throughout the world, scholars and teachers of American literature look to this journal for comprehensive coverage of their profession.

Quarterly, current volume 60
Subscription prices for 1989: individuals, $16; institutions, $26; students, $8; secondary schools, $16

Duke Mathematical Journal

Morris Weisfeld, editor

As of 1988, the Duke Mathematical Journal has expanded to six issues per year, published in two volumes of three issues each. This expansion—which will allow DMJ to publish over 1,600 pages of original research this year, covering all areas of mathematics and its applications—is necessary to accommodate the steadily increasing flow of high-quality papers being received by DMJ, without jeopardizing the journal's hard-earned reputation for prompt publication.

"A world-class research journal in broad areas of mathematics. The standards for acceptance of papers are high, and this title has an excellent reputation in academic libraries."—Magazines for Libraries

Bimonthly, current volumes 56/57
Subscription prices for 1989 (two volumes): individuals, $120; institutions, $240; individuals whose institution already subscribes, $60

Ethnohistory

Shepard Krech III, editor

"This journal is highly recommended."—Mogazines for Libraries

Ethnohistory, the official journal of the American Society for Ethnohistory, emphasizes the joint use of documentary materials and ethnographic data, as well as the combination of historiographic and anthropological approaches, in the study of social and cultural processes and history. The journal has established a particularly strong reputation for its studies of the history of native peoples in the Americas, and in recent years has expanded its focus to cultures and societies throughout the world.

Ethnohistory publishes articles, review essays, and book reviews written by scholars in anthropology, history, linguistics, art history, geography, and other disciplines. The articles published in Ethnohistory are united in their use of ethnohistorical methodology to analyze the past of societies and cultures. Archaeological artifacts, oral histories, myths, ethnographic observations, and the writings of literate people all provide data that must be analyzed, combined, reinterpreted, and synthesized to form a coherent account. Ethnohistory is the journal that scholars look to for theoretical, methodological, and substantive contributions in this difficult task.

Quarterly, current volume 35
Subscription prices for 1989: institutions, $34; individuals, $21 (includes membership in the American Society for Ethnohistory)
For information about the American Society for Ethnohistory, contact William O. Autry, Secretary/Treasurer of ASE, c/a Newberry Library, 60 W. Walton, Chicago, Illinois 60610.

Hispanic American Historical Review

David Bushnell, editor

Published by Duke University Press since its revival by J. Fred Rippy in 1926, HAHR pioneered the study of Latin American history and culture in the United States and remains the most widely respected journal in the field. Since 1954 HAHR has been published in cooperation with the Conference on Latin American History of the American Historical Association, and regular notices of the Conference's activities appear in the journal. The comprehensive book review section provides commentary, ranging from brief notices to review essays, on every facet of scholarship on Latin America and its history.

"The most highly regarded Latin American history journal published in the United States. An essential item for Latin American history collections."—Mogazines for Libraries

Quarterly, current volume 68
Subscription prices: individuals, $30; institutions, $54; students, $14

History of Political Economy

Craufurd D. W. Goodwin, editor

First published in 1969, HOPE was the first scholarly journal to focus on the history of economics and has played a major role in the development of this field of study. Each issue contains both book reviews and articles describing original research on the development of economic thought, the historical background behind major figures in the history of economics, the interpretation of economic theories, and the methodologies available to historians of economic thinking. "HOPE has . . . become an integral component of the expanding cumulative literature on the history of economics, and its pages must be studied closely by any scholar who proposes to discover, evaluate, and build upon established knowledge of the subject. Moreover, . . . it seems legitimate to claim that it has helped to raise both the standards and the expectations of performance in the field. The fact that its contributors have included some of the world's leading economists has also done its reputation no harm."—A. W. Coats, University of Nottingham (U.K.)

Quarterly, current volume 20
Subscription prices: individuals, $32; institutions, $56; students, $18

Journal of Forest History

Alice E. Ingerson, editor

The Journal of Forest History offers a long-term perspective on the entire range of human interactions with forests, including:

- land use and economic development (forest clearing, frontier settlement, lumber, furniture, fuelwood, pulp and paper, foods or drugs from forest ecosystems, tree farming, and agroforestry)
- conservation and recreation (legislation and administration, citizens' initiatives, public and common lands, watershed protection, erosion and reclamation, wildlife, wilderness, urban parks)
- forests and the natural world in art, literature, philosophy, and folklore
- forest-related exploration, science, and education (forestry, natural history, ecology, botany, zoology)

The Journal of Forest History has been the journal of record for these topics in North American history since 1957 and has recently expanded into international and comparative history.

Each issue includes book reviews, current annotated bibliography, and news of archival acquisitions and ongoing research.

Quarterly, current volume 32
Subscription prices: libraries and institutions, $30; individuals, $20 (includes membership in the Forest History Society)
Information about the other programs of the Forest History Society, which is affiliated with Duke University, can be obtained by writing to FHS, 701 Vickers Avenue, Durham, North Carolina 27701.

Journal of Health Politics, Policy and Law

Lowrence D. Brown, editor

Since 1976 JHPPL has provided a forum for policymakers, practitioners, and scholars to exchange ideas about the relationship between government and health—as it is now and as it ought to be. JHPPL is noted for the depth of its analysis, the breadth of its coverage, and the authoritativeness of its contributors.

Recent issues have featured special sections on the treatment of handicapped newborns, tobacco advertising, Medicaid and Medicare reform, comparative health politics, and the competitive effects of HMOs. Other recent articles have focused on methods of financing long-term care, the performance of medical malpractice review panels, cafeteria plans for fringe benefits, the structure of individual practice associations, small area analysis, and the acquisition of teaching hospitals by investor-owned chains.

An extensive book review section and a comprehensive "News and Notes" column help readers keep up with developments in the fields of health policy and health law. "An impressive journal featuring scholarly essays by distinguished attorneys, physicians, health specialists, and political scientists. . . . A must for all libraries serving or teaching health care professionals as well as collections on political science and government policy."—Magazines for Libraries

Quarterly, current volume 13
Subscription prices: individuals, $36;
institutions, $60; students, $16

Journal of Medieval and Renaissance Studies

Annobell Potterson and Morcel Tetel, coeditors

This distinguished semiannual publishes scholarly articles on any aspect of late medieval and Renaissance culture and society. Its topics include the art, literature, theater, music, philosophy, theology, and history (intellectual, political, and social) of this period. The journal especially seeks studies that bring several of these areas or disciplines together, illuminate issues in cross-disciplinary and comparative analysis, or bear on the problems of change and transition, whether institutional, stylistic, generic, or from one period to another.

"This is a well-edited and attractive publication [with] a prestigious editorial advisory board. Recommended for the university library."—Magazines for Libraries

Semiannual, current volume 18
Subscription prices for 1989: individuals, $20; institutions, $29

Journal of Personality

Stephen G. West, editor

For more than 50 years, the Journal of Personality has published scientific research in the field of personality, especially experimental studies of personality and behavior dynamics, personality development, and individual differences in the cognitive, affective, and interpersonal domains. Annual special issues focus on topics of particular interest, such as (in 1988) "Psychobiography and Life Narratives."

The reemergence of this journal as an important force in psychology reflects the development of new approaches in both theory and methodology within the recently revitalized field of personality research.

Quarterly, current volume 56
Subscription prices: individuals, $29;
institutions, $52; students, $15

SSCORE Social Science Computer Review

G. David Gorson, editor
Ronald Anderson, coeditor

In 1987 the two premier journals serving social scientists who are interested in the use of computers joined forces. The new SSCORE resulted from expansion of the Social Science Microcomputer Review to incorporate the former Computers and the Social Sciences. The combined journal provides a unique forum for social scientists to acquire and share information on the research and teaching applications of microcomputing and on the impact of computing on society and the social sciences.

Regular Features in Each Issue of
SSCORE

Communications and Reports. Responses and experiential accounts from the many readers who consider themselves an integral part of the SSCORE "network."

News and Notes. Information on conferences, new software releases, useful articles in other publications, and microcomputer services—includes items relevant to all social scientists as well as items of special interest to particular disciplines: economics, history, law, geography, political science, psychology, public administration, sociology, and statistics.

Software Reviews. Every issue contains careful reviews of 15–20 different software packages. Each review begins with a brief description of the package and its intended audience,

Social Science History

James Q. Graham, Jr., and Robert P. Swierenga, editors

followed by summary ratings of the package's usefulness, clarity, and difficulty, and then an in-depth assessment of how the program might best be used by social scientists.

Book Reviews. Many issues contain a review essay comparing and analyzing several books on a particular subject (recent examples include "Online Searching" and "Micro-computers and the Human Services") as well as 5–10 comprehensive reviews of individual titles.

Quarterly, current volume 6
Subscription prices: individuals, $28;
institutions, $56

The official journal of the Social Science History Association, SSH brings together social scientists interested in the study of change over time and historians interested in the development of consciously theoretical approaches to historical explanation. It presents both innovative research that applies rigorous methodologies to the study of the past, and essays that reflect upon the nature of the theories and methods used by scholars as they attempt to make sense of past events or trends.

SSH's contributors include anthropologists, demographers, economists, geographers, political scientists, and sociologists, as well as historians, making it a truly interdisciplinary forum. Each issue contains information about new developments in social science data archives, research funding agencies, training programs and summer institutes, and significant new publications in history and the social science disciplines.

Quarterly, current volume 12
Subscription prices: libraries and institutions, $50; individuals, $20 (includes membership in the Social Science History Association); students, $12

For information about the Social Science History Association, contact Howard W. Allen, Executive Director, Department of History, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois 62901.

SAQ The South Atlantic Quarterly

Editorial Board at Duke University:
Frank Lentricchia, chair; A. Leigh DeNeef, Stanley Fish, Fredric Jameson, Annabel Patterson, Lee Patterson, Barbara Herrnstein Smith, Jane Tompkins, Peter Waad

The inaugural fall 1987 issue from the new editorial board, entitled "Work in Progress at Duke," featured articles by the members of the editorial board. This issue "shows the board's interest in how social, political, class, and gender issues affect the act of creating literature, and also the act of reading literature."

The 1988 and 1989 volumes of SAQ include:

Third World literary and cultural criticism. Edited by Fredric Jameson, Rob Nixon on V. S. Naipaul, Hazel V. Carby on C. L. R. James, Mary N. Layoun on Fictional formations/deformations of national culture, Christopher L. Miller on Black African literature, Barbara Harlow on the Arab challenge to cultural dependency, Timothy Brennan on "metropolitan" vs. "indigenous" anticolonial writers, and Anne McClintock on patriarchy, South Africa, and King Solomon's Mines

Postmodernism and Japon. Co-edited by Masao Miyoshi and Harry Harootunian. "What these papers show, above all else, is a general conviction that any effort to define the scene of Japan's postmodernity requires undertaking the dangerous task of retracing the meaning of the modern as the Japanese have confronted it since the fateful decision to transform society in the image of Western 'enlightened' wealth and power. Nearly all of the papers consider the spectacle of the modern and how the Japanese have tried to extract the guarantee of stable meaning from a ceaselessly changing landscape and wrenching social transformations in daily life." Contributors include Tetsuo Najita, Asada Akira, J. Victor Koschmann, Norma Field, Brett de Bary, Karatani Kōjin, and Stephen Melville

Placing the plot: Novel perspectives. Contributors include Jonathan Arac on Charles Dickens, Susan Gillman on Mark Twain, Patricia McKee on Henry James, Michael Moses on Thomas Hardy, and Marianna Tomgovnick on Mario Puzo

Homosexuality and the academy. Coedited by Ron Butters, John Clum, and Michael Moon

Film and television theory. Edited by Jane Gaines

The fiction of Don DeLillo. Edited by Frank Lentricchia

The politics of liberal education

Quarterly, current volume 87
Subscription prices for 1989: individuals, $14; institutions, $24

Competition in the Health Care Sector:

Ten Years Later

Edited by Warren Greenberg

Journal of Health Politics, Policy and Law

In 1978 a book entitled Competition in the Health Care Sector was published by the Federal Trade Commission, edited by Warren Greenberg. This collection of essays proved influential in shaping the course of health policy over the next decade. Now, in 1988, Warren Greenberg has persuaded many of the same authors to reflect upon their earlier work in the light of both changes in their own thinking and developments in the financing of health care during the intervening decade.

Contributors: Stuart Altman, Christine Bishop, Alain Enthoven, H. E. Frech III and Paul B. Ginsburg, Lawrence Goldberg and Warren Greenberg, Joseph P. Newhouse, Mark V. Pauly, and Frank Sloan and Roger Feldman.

1988. 180 pages. $15.00

Psychobiography and Life Narratives

Edited by Dan P. McAdams and Richard L. Ochberg

Journal of Personality

In the light of the recent emergence of narrative and story as guiding frames for human understanding and the recent return of the person to center stage in personality psychology, the purpose of this special issue is to spotlight some of the fruitful ways in which contemporary personality psychologists are collecting, analyzing, and discerning stories about persons' lives. The special issue includes both concrete examples of how this work is done and abstract analyses of how it might or should be done.

Contributors: Alan C. Elms, Abigail J. Stewart (and others), David G. Winter and Leslie A. Carlsan, Rae Carlsan, James William Anderson, Jacquelyn Wiersma, George C. Rasenwald, Irving E. Alexander, and William McKinley Runyan.

1988. 325 pages. $18.00

Personality and Physical Health

Edited by Jerry Suls and Joan D. Rittenhouse

Journal of Personality

The relationship between personality factors and physical health has long intrigued both scientists and physicians. It appears that the requisite conceptual and methodological tools are now available to provide some definitive facts about this topic. The 1987 special issue provides a forum for the most recent research on how personality factors may contribute to medical functioning and lays a foundation for systematic collaboration between researchers in personality and in behavioral medicine.

Contributors: Michael F. Scheier and Charles S. Carver, Theodore M. Dembraski and Paul T. Costa, Jr., Christopher Peterson and Martin E. P. Seligman, John B. Jemmott III, Paul T. Costa, Jr. and Robert R. McRae, and Mogens R. Jensen, among others.

1987. 240 pages. $18.00

The State of the Art of Social Science Computing

An Annual
Social Science Computer Review

Each volume of the Social Science Computer Review will conclude with an annual symposium on the "state of the art": comprehensive assessments of computer applications for teaching and research in all the major social science disciplines, plus related fields.

The first such review, in 1987, includes separate articles on computing in sociology, anthropology, psychology, political science, economics, public administration, history, statistics, and expert systems. Each article is by a well-known authority in the field. Each article provides, in about fifteen tightly packed pages, an overview of recent applications, numerous resource listings (complete with addresses of suppliers), and an analysis of current trends and future directions.

1987 and 1988. $14.00 each

Symposium on Computerized Simulation in the Social Sciences

Edited by David Crookall, president of International Simulation and Gaming
Association

Social Science Computer Review

The combination of simulation techniques and computer technologies provides a powerful methodology that has already been used to great effect in recent years in the service of education, training, and research. Much of the most interesting educational software now available takes the form of simulations. This issue discusses theoretical and practical issues in computerized simulation.

The issue includes an overview of computerized simulation and specific reports on software now being developed to allow students to author their own simulations; on PWORLD, a "world model" that simulates foreign policy decisions; on the INTERNATIONAL FUTURES global model; on ZIMOD, which simulates the Zimbabwean economy; on the problem of how to handle "counter-intuitive results"; on the problem of how to "maintain" a computerized simulation so that it remains useful in various settings; and on research into the relation between behavior in a real event and in a simulated one.

1988. 180 pages. $14.00

Inka Ethnohistory

Edited by Terence N. D'Altray

Ethnohistory

The question of how and why certain states have expanded to control regions vastly exceeding their own territories is a central issue in the study of prehistoric society. The Inka Empire of western South America was one of the most extensive and complex of the early states: the Inkas created a vast bureaucracy and taxation system encompassing subjects from scores of ethnic groups. The Inka achievement appears even more extraordinary given the lack of a written language and the difficulties of transportation in the Andes.

This special issue examines some of the means by which the Inka Empire consolidated control over its subject population, looking at the political, economic, social, and ideological relationships between the dominant state and the incorporated polities.

Contributors: Terry Yarov LeVine, Mary B. La Lone and Darrell E. La Lone, Frank Salomon, and Terence D'Altray.

1987. 114 pages. $7.00

Rewriting the Middle Ages

Edited by Lee Patterson

Journal of Medieval and Renaissance Studies

Explicitly revisionary in their attitude toward received truths, seven leading medievalists here offer boldly argued reconsiderations of salient issues in current medieval studies. Considering a wide variety of topics—the impact of the market upon late medieval individuality, the shape of twelfth-century philosophical history, poaching as a puberty rite, the comparative study of medieval towns, Franciscanism and the macabre, the development of vernacular historiography, and the use of logic in defining the fictionality of narrative—these essays will be of interest to all medievalists, regardless of their field.

Contributors: David Aers, Marcia Colish, Barbara Hanawalt, Rodney Hilton, Diane Owen Hughes, Gabrielle Spiegel, and Peter Travis.

Tenth Anniversary Issue

Journal of Health Politics, Policy and Law

Published in book form in 1987 (with a new preface and an added index) as Health Policy in Transition: A Decade of Health Politics, Policy and Law, edited by Lawrence D. Brown.

Special volume in honor of Yuri Ivanovich Manin

Duke Mathematical Journal

Published in book form in 1987 as Mathematical Papers in Honor of Yuri Ivanovich Manin.

The Biological Past of the Black

Social Science History

Published in book form in 1988, with new material added, as The African Exchange, edited by Kenneth Kiple.

Both the South Atlantic Quarterly (SAQ) and Poetics Today run thematic issues several times each year. For recent and forthcoming issues, see the listing for each of these journals.

Author and Editor Index

Aptekar, Lewis 18
Babine, Alexis 4
Barber, James David 8
Beatley, Timothy 13
Bevington, Helen 7
Beyle, Thad L. 12
Banner, Arthur 23
Brada, Josef C. 22
Bradsher, Henry S. 23
Brower, David J. 13
Budd, Louis 16, 17, 26
Cady, Edwin H. 16, 17
Chilton, Stephen 20
Crispell, Kenneth R. 2
Csányi, Vilmos 21
DeNeef, A. Leigh 15, 29
Drake, Paul W. 18
Gada, Frank 23
Gamble, Andrew 9
Gati, Charles 23
Gilberg, Trond 10
Godschalk, David R. 13
Gamez, Carlos F. 2
Gresset, Michel 15
Hausman, Carl 23
Heard, Alexander 23
Hewett, Ed A. 22
Huffman, Michael J. 14
Kelley, Alice R. 7
Kelley, Joseph T. 7
King, Anthony 23
Kraft, Michael E. 10
Lacy, Allan 6
Lawrence, Elizabeth 6
Levy, David J. 16
Murphy, Patrick D. 14
Neal, William J. 24
Nelson, Michael 23
Penniman, Howard 12, 24, 25
Pilkey, Orrin J. 24
Pound, Omar 1
Raleigh, Donald J. 4
Ramet, Pedro 22, 23
Rasnake, Roger Neil 19
Rosenberg, Shawn 20
Rathenberg, Albert 23
Russin, Suzanne Sturmthal 5

Spaa, Robert 1
Straight, Michael 3
Sturmthal, Adalf 5
Teichgraber, Richard F. 21
Ugarte, Michael 16
Vig, Norman J. 10
Ward, Dana 20
Willett, Thomas D. 11
Wolf, Thomas A. 22
Yarbraugh, Tinsley E. 9

Sales Information

Booksellers

All prices and discounts are subject to change without notice. Books are short discount except when a t, indicating trade discount, follows the price. Unless otherwise noted, all bindings are cloth.

Prepayment is necessary until credit is established and should include a postage and handling charge of $2.00 for the first book plus $0.75 for each additional book. Credit applications and discount schedules are available upon request to the trade.

Single Title Order Plan (STOP) orders are accepted and must include $2.00 for postage and handling.

Returns. Authorization must be requested, and request must include invoice information. Returns are not allowed after one year from date of invoice. On defective books or shipping errors, returns must be made within 30 days. Full credit will be given.

Sales territory. World unless noted.

---

Orders and inquiries
(919) 684-6837, 8:30-5 Eastern Time, for orders and sales inquiries.
(919) 684-2173, 8:30-5 Eastern Time, for editorial and other matters.

Libraries

Libraries and institutions will be billed on receipt of official purchase order.

Examination and Desk Copies

Examination copies of paperbacks for course consideration will be sent on receipt of request on departmental letterhead. Please give name of course, when offered, and usual enrollment. Enclose $2.00 for postage and handling.

On-approval copies of cloth-bound books will be sent with invoice, which will be canceled on receipt of evidence of adoption, return of the book within 60 days, or payment.

Sales Representation

The United States and Canada (except as noted). Columbia University Press Sales Consortium, 562 West 113th Street, New York, NY 10025.

New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland. Mid-Atlantic Associates, 922 Grandview Avenue, Westfield, NJ 07090.

Europe, the Middle East, and Africa. Academic and University Press Ltd., 1 Gower Street, London WC1E 6HA, U.K.

Japan, the Philippines, Mainland Asia, Australia, New Zealand. East-West Export Books, 2840 Kalowalu Street, Honolulu, HI 96822.

All other areas. Export Marketing, Duke University Press, 6697 College Station, Durham, NC USA 27708.

Order Form

Books

Please send me the following

| Quantity | Author or journal | Short title | Price |
|----------|-------------------|-------------|-------|
|          |                   |             |       |
|          |                   |             |       |
|          |                   |             |       |
|          |                   |             |       |
|          |                   |             |       |
|          |                   |             |       |
|          |                   |             |       |

|                                                                     |    |  |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------|----|--|
| Subtotal                                                            | $ |  |
| North Carolina residents, add 5% sales tax                          |    |  |
| Postage and handling                                                |    |  |
| Add $2.00 for the first book, plus $0.75 for each additional book |    |  |
| Total                                                               |    |  |

Journals Full calendar year. All subscriptions are payable in advance and are accepted on a volume basis only. Postage and handling costs for domestic subscriptions are included in the subscription price. For foreign subscriptions, add $6.00 for postage and handling on each subscription (except as otherwise noted). All remittances must be in dollars, and drawn on a U.S. bank.

Check enclosed _____ Charge my VISA _____ or MasterCard _____

Credit card number and expiration date _____

Signature _____

Name (please print) _____

Address _____ City, state, zip code _____

6697 College Station Durham, NC 27708
Address Correction Requested

Nonprofit Organizat
U.S. Postage
Paid
Durham, NC
Permit No. 28
Third Class

PEGGY W SATTERFIELD
341 PERKINS LIBRARY